An oc - ta-gon has eight sides. We see one ev - 'ry day: a bright red sign to stop us on our way. A spi - der, he has eight feet, the same a-mount of eyes. He spins his web to catch a meal of flies. Eight, six - teen, twen - ty - four, thir - ty-two, for - ty, for - ty-eight, and fif - ty - six, six - ty-four— there's more! — here comes sev - en - ty-two, and we've done our count - ing all by eights.
